TODAY & TOMORROW

OCTOBER 5-18, 1985

ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED RUSH — TIME DATED

A new Library Copy Service has been set up in the UCSF Library, Room S 174, with seven new IBM high-volume photocopiers. The service is open during regular Library hours—Monday-Thursdays, 8 a.m.-midnight; Fridays, 8 a.m.-11 p.m.; Saturdays, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sundays, noon-midnight.

The new copiers all operate on the "VendaCard" system, which means that photocopies are paid for in advance. The card decreases in value as copies are run off, and when the value of the card is used up, it is turned in and a replacement can be purchased.

The new "VendaCards" will replace the present photocopy cards—"Copycheck" and "Infortext"—by November 1. The Library will continue to honor the older cards until that time.

The change over to the new photocopy system will be accomplished in three phases: UCSF students only may purchase "VendaCards" now, UCSF personnel beginning October 15, non-UCSF-affiliated people November 1. The cards may be purchased in denominations of 100, 200, 500, 1,000 or 5,000 copies at the Library Copy Service Office, Room S 180.

For further information contact Kenneth Weeks at x2334.

The Graduate Students' Association is sponsoring the annual Basic Science and Social Science Research Contests at separate forums on Wednesday, November 20.

Any graduate student wishing to submit a summary paper must apply to the GSA office no later than Monday, October 21. For further information call Candy at x2233.

MOVES

The Department of Otolaryngology's business office and office of management services officer Lucille L. Burnap has moved from HSE 871 to U 498. The telephone extension 1993 remains the same.

A faculty development program for new and junior faculty will be held on Monday, November 4, from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Faculty/Alumni House.

The program is intended to acquaint new and junior faculty with the organization and structure of the campus, responsibilities and activities of the Academic Senate, availability of research funds, and the faculty review process. Housestaff, advanced graduate students and postdoctoral fellows also are invited to attend.

The program is sponsored by the Office of the Senior Vice Chancellor, Academic Affairs and the Academic Senate Committee on Equal Opportunity. Anyone wishing to attend should call the Academic Services office at x2218 no later than Friday, October 25.

Applications now are being accepted for the Transfusion Medicine Academic Award. Sponsored by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, the award is used to encourage the development of curricula in transfusion medicine and allow the awardees to broaden their expertise in this area. Requests for the TMAA program guidelines should be directed to: Fann Harding, PhD, National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, Federal Building, Rm. 5A08, Bethesda MD 20205 (301) 496-1817. Application deadline is October 15.

UC's Cancer Research Coordinating Committee now has funds available to sponsor conferences and seminar series on current topics in cancer research. Faculty from all nine UC campuses are invited to submit applications for either campus-centered or University-wide conferences or seminar series, which will be open to all interested UC faculty and students.

For further information and application forms contact Contracts and Grants, 145 Irving Street, x2977, or call CRCC at 642-2923. There is no deadline date for receipt of applications for the 1985-86 academic year; worthy proposals will be funded as long as funds are available.

DEADLINE

Deadline for the next issue of Today & Tomorrow, which will cover the time period Oct. 19-Nov. 1, will be Tuesday, Oct. 8, 11 a.m. Please send your copy to Allen Balderson, News & Public Information Services, 532 Parnassus Ave., Rm. 300, x1541 or x2557.

Young people of all ages and their families are invited to the UCSF Children's Fair on Saturday, October 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Millberry Union.

Clowns, puppets, costumed characters, and special entertainment will contribute to the fun of this special UCSF event. All activities are free, and free parking will be available in the Millberry Union Garage.

Cosponsored by the UCSF Children's Medical Center and Hospitals and Clinics, the fair will feature close to 50 informational exhibits—ranging from car seat safety for infants to the special health needs of adolescents—designed to help young fair-goers learn about the many aspects of health care through hands-on experience. Exhibitors include UCSF departments and clinical units, as well as local health and welfare agencies and businesses.

Among the many activities will be hospital play with puppets, health screening, art projects using hospital supplies, the chance to explore the inside of an ambulance and 30-minute fitness sessions for children and adults.

A highlight of the day will be the first public showing of the new logo for the UCSF Children's Medical Center.

The annual campus reunion, sponsored by the UCSF Parent Support Group, for childen who were patients in the Intensive Care Nursery or mothers who participated in the Pre-Term Labor Program also will be held this year in conjunction with the fair.

UCSF faculty and staff who would like to be part of the fun by helping at one of the fair exhibits should call the Volunteer Services Office at x1196.

The fair is being coordinated by Jay H. Tureen, MD, assistant clinical professor of pediatrics; Adrianne Burton, coordinator of Child Life Services; and Sally Collard, pediatric nurse-practitioner.

The official groundbreaking for the new Beckman Vision Center at UCSF will be on Monday, October 28, at 11:30 a.m. on the west side of campus, near the upper parking lot behind the UC Hospital building.

The Center, the first major eye institute in Northern California, has been made possible by some $14 million in private gifts raised in a campaign directed by That Man May See, including a $3.5 million grant from the Arnold and Mabel Beckman Foundation and a $2.4 million challenge grant from the Koret Foundation.

Comprised of the Koret Vision Research Laboratory, new outpatient eye facilities and a clinical eye research unit, the Beckman Center will consolidate in one facility more than a dozen major research, teaching and clinical programs.

UCSF has been a leader in eye research for more than a decade, ranking third in amount of research monies received from the National Eye Institute. Major areas of interest include basic studies of the anatomy and physiology of the cornea and retina, work on eye diseases such as glaucoma, ocular tumors and infectious diseases of the eye and studies of the pharmacology of the eye. Some examples of these programs are:

- Basic research on visual development in animals has been applied directly to the treatment of newborn babies. By removing clouded lenses from the eyes of infants as early as possible, often in the first day of life, doctors at UCSF have been able to save useful vision in eyes which otherwise would have gone sightless for life.
- A technique developed in UCSF laboratories may eliminate the need for donated human corneas in certain diseases requiring corneal transplants. Cells grown in cultures may be used to replace the all-important inner lining of clouded corneas in a technique which has already proven successful in animals.

• The basis for the blinding disease known as glaucoma may be related to a premature loss of cells from the microscopic trabecular meshwork of the eyes. UCSF researchers were the first in the world to grow these cells from human eyes under experimental conditions, thus holding out hope for understanding and treating this disease.

• Diabetic retinopathy causes blindness in diabetic patients in their twenties and older, and is now the third leading cause of new cases of blindness. UCSF researchers have developed an effective animal model of this disease, providing an opportunity for safe and efficient testing of new forms of treatment, including lasers and experimental surgery.

Fifteen mental health professionals and sociologists from across the country will discuss facets of human nature that lead toward war and peace on Saturday and Sunday, October 19 and 20, in Cole Hall.

The symposium, "Society, Self & Nuclear Conflict," will feature internationally renowned speakers on the topic, including psychiatrists Robert Jay Lifton, MD, of Yale and Jerome D. Frank, MD, PhD, of Johns Hopkins. Sponsored by the Department of Psychiatry and the UC Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation, the symposium is offered to health and education professionals and interested members of the community.

A group of UCSF and other Bay Area mental health experts started planning the event last year, says Christie W. Kiefer, PhD, associate professor of anthropology and codirector of the symposium. Kiefer says they quickly discovered three things: 1) there is a great deal of new research on the topic, 2) the results of this psychological and social research are critically important if one wants to understand the vital issue of nuclear arms, 3) this information is largely ignored in policy debates, because nuclear strategists just don't know much about human nature or society.

UCSF speakers will include Kiefer, M. Margaret Clark, Arthur D. Colman, Bernard L. Diamond, Barbara Gerbert, Mardi Horowitz, Richard Lieberman, Mary Neal and Stanley Nudelman.

For registration information call x77-256 or 476-7256.

Francis Schiller, MD, will present the second annual Benjamin Lieberman Memorial Lecture in the History of the Health Sciences on Wednesday, October 23, at 4 p.m. in Toland Hall. Schiller will discuss "The Saga of J.B.M. von Sagar, Eighteenth-Century Nosologist." A reception will follow in the conference room of the Department of History and Philosophy of the Health Sciences, U 456.

Schiller is UCSF senior lecturer in the history of the health sciences and clinical professor emeritus of neurology. A 1951 UCSF graduate, Schiller has been on the UCSF faculty for some 34 years, reaching emeritus status in 1979. He was elected this year to the International Academy of the History of Medicine and is the author of the book Paul Broca 1824-1880: Founder of French Anthropology, Explorer of the Brain (UC Press, 1980).

The Lieberman Lectureship is endowed by family and friends in memory of the late Oakland internist, who died in April 1984. Lieberman, who loved music and had a strong interest in the history of medicine, donated several rare medical books to UCSF and UC-Davis libraries.

The Nurse-Midwifery Service at SFGH will celebrate its 10th anniversary on Thursday, October 10, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the lobby of the hospital.

Since 1975 the Nurse-Midwifery Service has been meeting the changing needs of families in the Bay Area. The service pioneered the first alternative birth center in the state and continues to offer personalized maternity care for childbearing women of all ages and ethnic origins, regardless of financial resources. Over 3,500 women have been attended by the nurse midwives since the service opened. The midwives care for 28 percent of the pregnant women at SFGH.

The service also has been the clinical site for the first school of nurse-midwifery in Northern California. Its 80 graduates now are providing nurse midwifery care at UCSF, Mount Zion, Alta Bates, and in a variety of urban and rural settings.

The Department of Psychiatry's Women's Issues Task Force is sponsoring a conference on "Reproductive Issues of Psychotic Women" on Friday, October 25, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the First Unitarian Church, SF. Topics will include treatment of psychotic pregnant patients, emotional development in infants of schizophrenic mothers and resistance to doing research on reproductive and women's issues. Fee is $25. For further information contact Joanne Wile, 821-8391.

The third annual Ob/Gyn Research and Education Foundation Day will be held on Monday, October 7, at 3 p.m. in Toland Hall with a scientific symposium and dedication of the enlarged Ernest W. Page Library of Reproductive Medicine and Biology.

The scientific program, "Sexually Transmitted Diseases," will include introductory remarks on the changing emphasis of sexually transmitted diseases by Richard L. Sweet, professor and vice chair, Ob/Gyn; followed by:

• "The AIDS Epidemic." Merle Sande, professor and vice chair, medicine;

• "Impact of Sexually Transmitted Diseases on Teenagers." Mary Ann Shafer, assistant professor and associate director, adolescent medicine;

• "Impact of Sexually Transmitted Diseases on Infertility." Richard Sweet.

Dedication of the Page Library in Room 1486 Moffitt Hospital, tour of the library and a reception will follow the symposium. The library honors emeritus professor Aird, who chaired the department from 1958 to 1973.

Nobel laureate Melvin Calvin, PhD, will deliver the Graduate Students' Association's first annual guest lecture "Renewable Fuels for the Future" on Friday, October 18, at 3 p.m. in Cole Hall.

Calvin won the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1961 for his work on photosynthesis. A member of the UC-Berkeley faculty since 1937, he is University Professor in the Department of Chemistry and was director of the Laboratory of Chemical Biodynamics from 1945 to 1980.

The campus community is invited to a reception, which will follow the lecture at 4:30 p.m. at the Faculty/Alumni House.

A number of eminent researchers from around the country assembled at the new UCSF-Laurel Heights campus in late September for a scientific symposium to celebrate the 90th birthday of David M. Greenberg, PhD, a distinguished protein biochemist who headed UCSF's Department of Biochemistry for 17 years, from 1947 to 1963.

Presentations during the one-day symposium included reminiscences of Greenberg's role in science, as a researcher and teacher at UC-Berkeley and UCSF (Nathan Kaplan of UCSD and Philip Siekevitz of Rockefeller University); an account of Greenberg's challenge of scientific quackery in medicine (Thomas Jukes of UC-Berkeley); a discussion of the development of radioactive compounds as tracers in biology (Martin Kamen of UCSD and Waldo Cohn of the Oak Ridge National Laboratories); a presentation of more recent studies of growth hormone (C.H. Li of UCSF); growth inhibition of transformed mouse cells (Leon Heppel of Cornell); a discussion of carcinogens and anticarcinogens in the diet (UC-Berkeley's Bruce Ames); and an update on the use of highly specific mutations to study the relation between 3-D structure and function of enzymes (UCSF's William Rutter).

The week of October 6 has been proclaimed National Respiratory Care Week to recognize the valuable role that respiratory therapists play in US health care.

In celebration of the week, the UCSF Respiratory Care Service is sponsoring "Magic by Rios," a free performance featuring the well-known illusionist and escape artist, on Wednesday, October 9, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Cole Hall. Doors will open at noon. A bake sale and raffle will accompany the show.

Since its establishment in the mid-1940s, the field of respiratory care has grown to encompass more than 90,000 practitioners throughout the country, providing care to individuals with cardiopulmonary disease in a variety of hospital and home care settings.

The UCSF Respiratory Care Service consists of 55 practitioners who work around the clock in several hospital areas including the Emergency Room, Intensive Care Nursery, Intensive Care Unit, as well as the Code Blue Team, and are involved in several research and education activities, according to education director Michael Mahlmeister.

The next campus blood donation day will be on Monday, October 21. Blood donation sites will be the Millberry Union residents' lounge (new location) from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the mezzanine level of the School of Nursing building from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Donors are asked to bring personal ID. For further information call x4013.

The blood donation raffle prizes—a pair of gift certificates for the Washington Square Bar & Grill—have been increased from $35 to $50, and will again be donated by the Associated Students of UCSF and the restaurant.

The alumni associations of the schools of Dentistry and Pharmacy will stage a contest among the classes of each school, with cash awards going to those classes donating the most blood.

Campus blood drives are sponsored by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank and coordinated by Campus Tours/Speakers Bureau.

The campus already is gearing up for this year's United Way campaign to be held November 1 to 15. On Friday, October 25, some 500 department and donor representatives will attend a briefing luncheon from noon to 2 p.m. in the Millberry Union gym. The campaign this year will include competition between individual departments and schools. "The campus wants to increase its participation, and I know we can do it," said Dean of the School of Nursing Margretta Styles, campus chair for this year's campaign. See the next issue of Today & Tomorrow for further details.

You now can use your Visa or MasterCard to join Millbery Union. Fall memberships valid through December 31, are available and cost $42 for all eligible employess. For further information call x2571.

HONORS & AWARDS

Michael Katz, assistant professor, ob/gyn; Pamela J. Gill, assistant clinical professor, physiological nursing, School of Nursing: Received first prize for excellence in research at the annual Nursing Association of the American College of Obstetrics & Gynecology meeting in June.

Patricia Benner, associate professor, physiological nursing, School of Nursing: Elected a fellow, American Academy of Nursing.

Clifford Attkisson, professor, medical psychology; associate dean, Graduate Division: Principal investigator & training director of a new Clinical Services Research Training Program. Barbara Havassy, assistant professor, psychology, will serve as associate director of training. The program is made possible by a five-year, $752,000 NIMH award.

Jeanie Kayser-Jones, associate professor, family health care nursing, School of Nursing, & medical anthropology program: Received a three-year $477,300 award from the National Institute on Aging to investigate the social cultural factors that influence decision making in the treatment of acute illness in nursing homes. Joseph Barbaccia, professor & head, geriatric teaching group, family & community medicine, is the faculty resource person; Sandra Ferketich, assistant professor, physiological nursing, is the quantitative data analyst.

Alan J. Davidson, clinical professor, radiology: Named Distinguished Scientist, Department of Radiologic Pathology, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, DC; named associate editor, American Journal of Roentgenology.

Pentti Siiteri, professor, ob/gyn: Named editor-in-chief, Endocrine Reviews; delivered the Joseph Price Oration at the annual meeting of the American Gynecologic & Obstetric Society in Sept.

Edward M. Weinshel, clinical professor, psychiatry: Named secretary, International Psycho-Analytical Association.

Jean Neeson, associate clinical professor, family health care nursing, School of Nursing: Received a $667,000, three-year grant from US Dept. Health & Human Services, to train nurse practitioners in women's primary care.

David I. Margolin, assistant professor, neurology & psychiatry: Awarded a $4,000 UCSF Academic Senate Grant to study cognitive processing deficits in dysnomia.

PUBLICATIONS

Calvin F. Settlage & Reed Brockban, both clinical professors, psychiatry: Co-editors, New Ideas in Psychoanalysis: The Process of Change in a Humanistic Science (The Analytic Press, NJ, 1985).

Julian T. Parer, professor & director, obstetrics: Co-editor, Research in Perinatal Medicine (Perinatology Press, NY, 1985).

Karen R. Williams, doctoral candidate, physiological nursing, School of Nursing: Coauthor, So You're Having an Operation: A Step-by-Step Guide to Controlling Your Hospital Stay (Prentiss Hall, NJ, 1985).

Holly S. Wilson, professor, mental health & community nursing, School of Nursing: Coauthor, Applying Nursing Research: A Resource Book (Addison-Wesley, Menlo Park, 1985).

IN MEMORIAM

John W. Leishman: A member of the UCSF faculty for some 20 years, he had been associate clinical professor, medicine, since 1975. Leishman received his BS from the University of San Francisco and his MD in 1952 from Creighton University, Nebraska. In 1956 he returned to San Francisco to open a private practice in internal medicine on Ocean Ave. He was an officer and a member of the board of trustees, California Society of Internal Medicine from 1966-1972.

Joe M. Morales. Staff research associate, CVRI since 1981. Before coming to UCSF he worked as a medical technologist at Holy Cross Hospital, Austin, TX.

The campus will have a public information meeting Thursday, October 17, at 7 p.m. at the Laguna Honda conference room, 1350 Seventh Avenue. The meeting will give the campus community and residents in the neighborhood an opportunity to express concerns and ask questions regarding campus programs.

The agenda will include the new library, to be constructed near Third and Parnassus, plus an update on the return of University-owned homes on Third and Fifth Avenues to University residential use, plans for the new UCSF-Laurel Heights campus, the new Koret Vision Research Laboratory, which is part of the new Beckman Vision Center, and campus beautification efforts.

For further information call x3206.
